Mr. SPEAKER : I order the expunction of all the remarks so far made by the hon. Member Sri A. Kunjan Nadar in his speech to-day The hon. Member may now proceed.

* Sri A. KUNJAN NADAR : Sir, very tragic events have taken place. But, the real tragedy lies not in the burning of the Police officers or in the violence committed or in the destruction of public property or in the shooting of students. The real tragedy lies in the fact that so much was needed to put sense into the heads of our rulers. That is the real tragedy. We have been listening to the debates in the last Assembly. I am very, very sorry to express these remarks, Sir. Who started this violence, I ask? I do not have any ill-will towards any Ministers or the Government. Sir, I do not have any political motive. In this connection, I would like to draw the attention of the hon. Members to the proceedings of the last Assembly. In the Constitution, it is stated that we have got certain fundamental rights, the right of association and freedom of speech. These are not subject to the administrative control or the convenience of any officer or any Minister or any party. That right is there always, for all the 24 hours and all the 365 days. Who said that there is no fundamental right on the Republic Day? Our Chief Minister said, ' You cannot mourn on the Republic Day, you cannot meet on the Republic Day and express your feelings. ' That is a wrong position that he had taken. I have got to say a lot of things on this point. The Chief Minister stated that even if there was peaceful mourning, he would not allow it. He said, ' Without the Police if possible and with the Police if necessary, I will crush you and destroy you. ' That was the attitude taken by such an experienced and aged Chief Minister of our State. If the destruction to public property had been done by anti-social elements and if anti-social elements or anybody are stated to be responsible for these things, the Ministers are equally responsible for them. That is what I wish to point out in this connection. Anyway, what has happened, has happened. I wish to congratulate the student community on their having launched such a great agitation. I thank them for their gallant and heroic fights for our future. It is very wrong to belittle the feelings of the people of the whole country. Our Chief Minister says that the D.M.K. was solely responsible for this agitation. Sir, I would not agree with him on this point. I would not give the sole credit to the D.M.K.
